Telegraph Operators' Signs. Telegraph operators always have per-sonal signs which they place on all messages they send or receive. Usually they use two of their initials or take two letters from their names. For instance, James Black will probably use "JB" as his sign. In many cases, however, they choose their signs in peculiar

"We once had a man working here who signed 'KE' because he had taken the Keeley cure," said a Kansas City chief operator. "He afterward went back to drinking and then used 'BZ.' derlying it from 'booze.' Another fel-low signed 'PS' because he used to say be received a poor salary. A woman operator we had here used to sign 'HK,' her initials, until one day her beau jilted her and married another After that she signed 'Bill,' which, we understood, meant broken heart. In an eastern office where I once worked there was a hoodoo sign. It was 'KQ.' The first man who used it there was killed by a train, the next one went crazy and the third died of typhold fever. After that nobody in the office dared use the hoodoo sign. The story about its being a Jonah traveled over the country, and today you'll and very few operators signing 'KQ.'

American Exuberance.

A prominent English statesman who visited this country a few years ago was talking with friends about the national characteristics of Americans and gave it as his opinion that the westerner is the most truly humorous of the citizens of the United States.

"Why," said the Briton in explana-tion, "a relative of mine who frequently visits the States for purposes of sport tells me that he was entranced by the reply made to him by the proprietor of a hotel in Nebraska when he asked if there were any quall in the "'Quail!" exclaimed the proprietor. I should say so! Why, they've got to be a regular nulsance round here. My cook complains that she can't throw a piece of toast out of the window without four or five fat quall fighting to see which shall get on it?" — Woman's Home Companion.

The Antiquity of Football.

If it is not the oldest game in the world football is not far from it. But it has never been a game in which puny nations played. The Greek game was originally called pheninda, or feinting, later it was called episkyrus, epikoinos, and lastly harpaston, under which name it came to resemble football. The Roman game was follis and was less There was a center runner in harpaston, around whom the game was fought out. One side was given the ball; the other side chose a center. The side with the ball stood some distance back from a line on which the center runner was posted, and at signal the ball was thrown past the middle man. Players could be held back from securing the ball in any way, though the Greek youths had no rush formation, never seeming to have learned the value of team work,-Outing.

Acute Sense of Hearing.

"Yes," said the prosperous lawyer in speaking to a friend, "I had a long wait before I got any practice, but I am certainly satisfied now with my profession and its emoluments.

"The early days, the waiting for ellents, was hard, though. Why, do you know that I got so after awhile that when I heard a footstep on the stairs I could tell ninety-nine times out of a hundred whether or not the person was coming to my office?"

'Well, that is strange," replied his "Your sense of hearing must have been very acute.

"Not so much that," replied the law-"You see, I made up my mind that they were not coming to my office. and ninety-nine times out of a hundred

A Suggestive Sermon.

The Rev. Dr. Howard, chaplain to Princess Augusta, was so fond of good living that he ran into debt with many of the tradesmen in his parish. It was in their special interests that he one day preached from the text, "Have patience, and I will pay you all." He spoke at great length on the virtues of patience and then proceeded, "I now come to the second part of my discourse, which is, 'and I will pay you all,' but that I shall defer to a future occasion."-London Standard.

The Alexandrite.

Don't think that your knowledge of wonder gems is complete till you have seen an "alexandrite," green by day and red by night. And such a green olive bronze, with a potent suggestion that red is there. Green when held in the sunlight. In a darkened room with artificial light a ruby where the emerald was a moment before-a tawny wine red of exquisite tone.

The Tearless Buttle.

The Tearless battle was fought be tween the Spartans on one side and the Arcadians and Arjives on the other 367 B. C. Not a Spartan fell in the engagement, and so, Plutarch says, the Lacedaemonians called it the Tearless battle.

A Safe Opening.

"It does not follow that a safe opening is necessarily a secure sort of busi-ness," muttered the burglar as he began his drilling, "especially as one has to do so much blowing about it."-Baltimore American.

The Breath of Life.

The Breath of Life.

It's a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorills, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. Oh, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." An ingenious instrument which dem-onstrates the close connection that exists between dreams and brain calculation is known as the "tilt board." A long, shallow tray big enough for a man to recline upon is balanced exactly upon a steel blade. A subject is placed upon it and put to sleep, whereupon the end containing his feet gen erally falls. But eventually the subject begins to dream, and then the tray con taining the sleeper's feet reascends, the extent to which it moves varying according to the vividness of the dream, The explanation is that the blood leaves the brain of a sleeper directly the mental activities cease, and, the head as a result becoming lighter, that end of the balance rises. When the sleeper dreams small quantities of blood are recalled to the brain to sup ply the dreams, and the balance is gradually changed. In this way dreams may be weighed.

Venus Among the Incas. The only planet which the Incas had discovered was Venus, which they called the hairy on account of the brightness of its rays. They said that, being the most brilliant of the stars, the sun would not permit it to be sep arated from him and obliged it to attend his rising as well as his going down, just as at the courts of kings only the most distinguished lords and the handsomest ladies were admitted to the ceremonious royal risings and retirings. It appears nearly certain that the Incas spoke of Venus under two different names, according as it preceded or followed the sun. To this day the native Peruvians name it in fanciful language the eight hour torch and the twilight lamp. As this star served to show the Indians when it was time to prepare the maize for cooking, they also gave it a name indicative of that act. A chapel in the Temple of the Sun was conse

A Chicago Alderman Owes His Elec-tion to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs, says Hon. John Shenick, 220 So. Peoria St., Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaigu, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. It my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not two doses that afternoon and could no believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several does that day, kept right on talking through the cam-paign, and I thank this medicine that I won my seat in the Council." This remedy is for sale by Gibson & Timber-man and W. F. Creighton & Co.
